GERMAN ATTACKS GROW IN FIERCENESS

ALLIES HAVE BEEN ABLE TO REPULSE ALL ASSULTS

London Terrorized Over Expected Visit From Zeppelin Airships

POWERFUL SEARCHLIGHTS SWEEP THE SKY

City Kept in Darkness at Night—Aeroplane Sheds are Being Constructed at Antwerp, Brussels and Other Belgian Towns for the Operation of Zeppelins—One Hundred Thousand Destitute Belgians in London and More On the Way—Suppression of a Royailst Revolt in Portugal—United States Protests Against British Seizure of American Tank Steamer.

Attacks by the kaiser's troops all along the 350-mile battle line, in northern France, were repulsed yesterday by the allied armies, according to the French official announcement.

These assaults following the failure of the kaiser's dash for Dunkirk, were apparently aimed to find a weak point in the defenders' lines.

At La Bassee, south of Lille, the German attack was exceptionally violent.

The French statement indicated that the allies' forces which had advanced from Ypres to Rouiers had been forced to withdraw toward Ypres.

Fierce German Attacks Repulsed

Paris, Oct. 21—Attacks by the German forces along the Franco-Belgian front are increasing in violence, but are being repulsed, according to this afternoon's official statement.

The fierceness of the attacks is attributed to strong reinforcements received by the Germans. Particularly violent attacks have been repulsed at Nieuport, Dixmunde and Labasse.

It is apparent that the victories of the allies may screen an unexpecetd move by the Germans.

Fear a Zeppelin Raid

London, Oct. 21.—Imminence of a German aerial raid is causing fear here. Telegrams from Rotterdam and Amsterdam state that the German factories, where aeroplanes and Zeppelin derigibles are constructed are working day and night. Sheds are being constructed at Antwerp, Brussels and other Belgian points.

London in Darkness

London is darkened at night, while powerful government search lights sweep the sky.

One hundred thousand Belgian refugees are here, penniless and 50,000 more soon will be, and the stream continues.

A Royalist Revolt

Royalist revolt agains tthe Portugees government at Braganza is reported in a dispatch from Lisbon. The revolt was crushed and the leader named Beca, was arrested.

United States Protests

Washington.—Assistant Secretary of State Lansing has lodged a formal protest with the British government against the seizure of the American tank steamer Rockefeller.

MRS. CARMAN SAID TO HAVE CONFESSED

Colored Maid Swears to This at the Trial Today

SAW HER WITH PISTOL IN HAND

Testimony of This Witness a Severe Blow to the Defense in the Murder Trial—Insane Jealousy of Husband Given as Motive for the Killing of Mrs. Bailey.

(By International News Service)

Mineola, Oct., 21—Many of yesterday's witnesses in the trial of Mrs. Florence Carman, charged with the murder of Mrs. Louse Bailey in the office of the prisoner's husband were called to establish the alleged motive—jealousy. One was Mrs. Elizabeth Varance, a trained nurse, whose face Mrs. Carman slapped when she saw Dr. Carman give her money and allow her to kiss him, it was testified. Another was Gaston Boissannault, former chief of the Canadian secret service and now manager of the company that sold the wife of the physician a "mechanical eavesdropper" so she might hear what wnet on in her husband's private office when women patients were there. Then there was the man who installed the instruments.

A new fact was develcped which the prosecution seemed to consider significant. Physicians who performed the autcpsy upon the victim of the tragedy in the doctor's office, testified that she would have become a mother had she lived.

Says Mrs. Carman Confessed

Celia Coleman, the colored maid in the Carman home was unexpectedly called as the first witness today. She testified that her mistress Mrs. Carman, confessed the murder to her, that on the evening of the murder Mrs. Carman went out the kitchen door, she heard a shot a few moments later, and in a moment or two Mrs. Carman returned with a pistol in hand. Star witness' testimony was a severe blow to defense. Mrs. Carman had tears in her eyes during her maid's testimony.

Celia Coleman on being cross examined, admitted she perjured herself before the coroner's jury.

Story of the Crime.

Mrs. Bailey was shot and killed early in the evening of June 30, 1914, in the office of Dr. Carman, located on the first floor of the house. She was just about to leave when a hand was thrust through a pane of glass in the window and a shot fired from a revolver. The woman died almost instantly. Suspicion pointed at once to Mrs Carman, who was intensely jealous of her husband. She admitted that she had suspected her husband with showing too much attention to other women and that she had installed a dictaphone leading from his office to her bedroom. She denied any connection with the shooting, however, saying she was lying down in her room on the second floor of the house when the shot was fired.

The authorities found an important witness in Frank J. Farrel, a tramp, who said he saw a woman resembling Mrs. Carman at the time the shot was fired, and Mrs. Carman's negro house maid said that her mistress passed through the kitchen on her way to her room immediately after the shot telling her not to tell any person that she had seen her. On the strength of this testimony the grand jury [illegible] Mrs. Carman for second degree murder and she was released on [illegible]. A week or so afterward [illegible] testimony was presented to the grand jury and a [illegible] the murder was [illegible] Mrs. Carman was then locked up.

It is understood [illegible] the shooting Mrs. Carman called downstairs to her daughter to stop playing the [illegible] it being [illegible] to hear over the dictaphone when the piano was being played.

F—To the south of St. Die renewed German assaults are reported.
G—The official British reports claim that England's troops in the "Northern area" have driven the Germans back "thirty miles."

Colonel Roosevelt Cannot Visit Clearfield Thursday, October 29

John W. Barratt, Clearfield county chairman of the Washington party, yesterday received the following telegram from A. Nevin Detrich, "Philadelphia, Oct. 20, 1914.

John W. Barratt, Clearfield, Pa.

"Colonel Roosevelt has compelled us to deliver him in New York at 4 o'clock Thursday afternoon, consequently he must start the day at Tyrone, cutting out DuBois and Clearfield.

"Tremendous disappointment to me, as it will be to you."

"A. NEVIN DETRICH."

It is supposed that Colonel Roosevelt considers that he is needed in New York more than he is in Pennsylvania. As Chairman Detrich says, the failure of Colonel Roosevelt to come into Clearfield county is a great disappointment to the local workers of the Washington party, who had prepared to give the Colonel a hearty welcome.

The voters of Clearfield county, as well as everybody else, wanted to see the famous former president, who continues to be the idol of the friends of good government

While Colonel Roosevelt will be unable to visit Clearfield county, the opponents of Penroseism may rest assured that he is heartily in accord with the efforts the honest people of this state are making to oust the Penrose machine from the state.

CONTRACTOR THOMPSON HAS FINISHED BRIDGE REPAIRS

The repairs to the Presqueisle street bridge, crossing the Moshannon, at Philipsburg, leading to Chester Hill, have been completed by Contractor G. I. Thompson, of Clearfield, and the commissioners of Center and Clearfield countise took the job off the hands of that gentleman, who did the work in a satisfactory manure.

LADIES ORCHESTRA PLAYED TO A FAIR SIZED HOUSE

A fair sized audience greeted the Pittsburg Ladies Orchestra, the first entertainers in the Y. M. C. A. lyceum course, at the opera house last evening. The musicians gave an excellent performance, the solos being well received. Most of the members of the orchestra are young girls, and their instrumental music give promise of great success in future years.

ARBOR DAY NAMED BY DR. NATHAN SCHAEFFER

Friday, Oct. 23, was proclaimed the autumn Arbor day for Pennsylvania by Dr. Nathan C. Schaeffer, state superintendent of public instruction, who suggests the spreading of the propaganda of conservation as well as the planting of trees. Dr. Schaeffer's proclamation is as follows:

BAPTIST CONVENTION RAPS RUM TRAFFIC IN STATE

Scranton, Pa., Oct. 21—Sweeping attacks on the liquor traffic in Pennsylvania marked the sessions yesterday of the seventh anniversary of the Baptist general convention in the Immanuel Baptist church.

The 500 ministers and lay delegates adopted a report from Rev. Dr. Samuel Z. Batten, of Philadelphia, secretary of the social service committee. The report recommended agitation for adequate child labor law, legislation for the proper segregation of feeble-minded persons' and a county option law as a step towards the ultimate elimination of the liquor evil.

DR. STOUGH TALKS TO MINERS AT DUBOIS

DuBois, Oct. 21.—Delegation of several hundred persons from Punxsutawney and Big Run, Jefferson county, attended the meeting at the Stough tabernacle last evening. They carried a banner upon which was printed "Big Run Against Booze," "Remonstrance vs. Whiskey, 13 to 1." "Not Our Fault That We Have Two Saloons—We Blame the Judge."

Jefferson county, at the January term of license court, petitioned Judge John W. Reed with more than 1200 names, containing 60 per cent. of the voters of the county, to refuse all licenses. The licenses were granted.

Last night was miners' night at the tabernacle; and while there was a large attendance, much interest centered in the Big Run banner. The song of the night was "Pennsylvania Dry," which was converted into "Clearfield county dry"; and the 3000 persons sang it as though they meant it. Last night opened the last week of the campaign.

The amount of the budget has been raised, and the number of trail-hitters increased to about 2000. The men employed at the Adrian iron furnace marched to the tabernacle in a body and presented the evangelist with a roll of paper which he said was of the proper color.

Latest advices from his bedside state that his condition is becoming more favorable and his many friends are hoping he will soon be able to be around again.

AUSTRIANS REPORTED TO HAVE TAKEN OFFENSIVE

Alleged That They Have Occupied Places in Bukavina Province

ALSO CAPTURED ONE RUSSIAN GENERAL

Situation in the East Has Not Materially Changed—Russians Making Large Numbers of Prisoners—Heavy Fighting Around Praemysl, Considerable Damage Being Done to the Forts—Battle Along the Vistula Still Continues—Germans and Austrians Are on the Defensive.

Vienna, Oct. 20, via Berlin and Amsterdam, Oct. 21.—Austrian successes in Galicia and Bukavina and the capture of a Russian general are officially announced.

This is the first news that the Austrians have taken the offensive in the province of Bukavina. The Austrians have occupied Stryj, 42 miles south of Lemberg, and Kucsurmare and Sereth, in Bukavina.

Situation Unchanged

Pearograd, Oct. 21.—Reports agree that the situation in the east has not changed, although the armies are in close touch along the East Prussian frontier and across Poland and Galicia.

The Russians are making large numbers of prisoners. Heavy fighting is still going on around Praemysl and the cupolas of the forts surrounding the town are said to have been destroyed by the big Russian siege guns, while the forts have been mined and dismantled and the magazines blown up. The town itself, however, has not been damaged.

Vistula Battle Continues

The battle continues on the Vistula, San and Dniester rivers. There is a system of great entrenchments on the Russian side and the entire front is furnished with powerful guns which day and night hurl thousands of projectiles into the enemy's lines. The Austrians and Germans have been obliged to remain on the defensive.

Protrograd, Oct. 21.—It is officially stated by the Russian news agency, that the Austro-German forces were driven back forty-five miles west of the Vistula. The Russian advance posts are in the vicinity Skierniewice a railroad center, southwest of Warsaw.

FOUGHT ALL DAY, MARCHED ALL NIGHT

Interesting Stories of the War Told by English Soldiers

ALLEGED GERMAN BARBARITIES

Stated That They Fired on Red Cross Hospitals, Placed Women and Children in Front of Them as Shields—Also Charged With Bayoneting the Wounded, Under Orders of Their Officers.

By Lawrence Easton.

Following are several more stories of incidents connected with the European war, told by wounded British soldiers:

A Jarrow constable who is serving in the Royal Field Artilery, and who is now in hospital at Leicester, writing to his police colleagues, describes the British Expeditionary Force work during a certain undated period as "fighting all day and marching all night."

"The Germans must have lost thousands of men. The brutality of our foe was shameful. They put the women and children in front for us to shoot, and in many cases they fired on our Red Cross. Such work will surely be stopped by the Great Architect of the Universe. The French people were very good to us, giving us eggs, milk, bread, fruit, and wine in plenty. I hope my dear wife and children are being provided for during my absence. It is my only thought all day."

William Henry Farrol, a reservist of the Royal Warwickshire regiment, who was wounded in the battle at Mons, tells of the fighting there and at Thuin and Cambrai.

"The slaughter during these three days," he says, "was terrible the loss on the German side being far more severe than that of the allies. The scene was rendered all the more horrible by the barbarous actions of the German army. Every village they passed through they set on fire, and it made the hearts of the allied soldiers ache to see the Belgian and French people with their poor little children leaving their homes. The Germans have suffered already for it, and we shall make them suffer more for it before we have done with them. The French and Belgian people have been very good t ous. They are good natured people and though they could ill afford it, they gave us fruit and cigarettes."

Farrol adds that he had not been long in the field hospital, where there were between 200 and 300 wounded soldiers, before the [illegible] for all men who could walk [illegible].

October 21, 1914

Good evening! Yes, the truth is mighty and will prevail; but it hurts when it hits us straight in the face.

It always takes two to make a bargain, but one lawyer can upset a marriage in short order.

After the war is over the facts will be made plain and the lies and misrepresentations be forgotten.

President Wilson's war tax is a tribute—another one—to the ability of the Democratic party to blunder.

If every friend of good government will vote for Gifford Pinchot both Penrose and his friend Palmer will be snowed under next month.

Marse Henry Watterson has forgiven President Wilson, but the editor of the Courier-Journal will never forget the little episode of 1912.

Don't remain out of the woods merely because there is no game there; you will benefit in health by tramping through the dells and climbing the hills.

Those who listened to the musical concert in the opera house last night shared in a rich treat. Those who remained at home to gossip or otherwise enjoy themselves will never know what they missed.

Those Mexicans are innocent people. They fight on the border, wound Americans and then send their own wounded soldiers across the line for treatment, possibly under the belief that Uncle Sam is running a big hospital.

Beware of the man who whispers slanders about the Washington party candidates. If what he tells you behind the door were true every Republican newspaper in the state would print it under scare heads on the first page.

PALMER WILL NOT WITHDRAW

It is officially stated that A. Mitchell Palmer will not withdraw as the Democratic candidate for United States senator. There was very little expectation among those who know Palmer that he would get off the ticket and thus make the election of Gifford Pinchot certain. Palmer was one of the reorganizers of the Democratic party in Pennsylvania. He was a reorganizer for personal profit only. He could not boss the old Democratic party, and as his greatest ambition was to be a boss he helped to reorganize the Democratic party and is today one of the most arrogant political bosses in the country.

The old Democratic party of the state was always accused of being an annex to the Quay machine. The charge was probably true. The course pursued by Palmer causes many people to believe that he seeks to form a coalition with the Penrose machine in order that he may continue to boss the party. Palmer's candidacy cannot but be regarded as a good thing for Penrose. If Palmer were to ask the voters of the reorganized Democratic party to support Penrose they would refuse, but by remaining on the ticket Palmer will accomplish this end by fooling a large number of Democrats to vote for him and thus help the Penrose cause along.

Whatever the result of the election may be, the course being pursued by Palmer will be condemned by every citizen who now sees in the candidacy of Gifford Pinchot an opportunity to defeat Penrose and forever wipe off the political map of Pennsylvania the blotch of Penroseism. If Palmer were hired by Penrose to remain on the Democratic ticket he could not do more effective work for the agent of the liquor ring than he is doing in refusing to give the people a chance to elect Pinchot and give the state of Pennsylvania a United States senator who cannot be bought, coaxed or forced to support measures inimical to the welfare of the people.

GOOD FORESIGHT

Sometime ago a business firm in Clearfield appealed to the borough council for permission to place a gasoline tank under the pavement in front of its store, affirming that such tanks are to be found in many large cities, the authorities of which were satisfied that no danger to the public would ensue. Burgess Callahan opposed the proposition, and council refused its permission. There was no prejudice in the action of the burgess and council, the refusal of the petition being based solely upon the probable danger to human life and to property should permission be granted to place a gasoline tank beneath the sidewalk.

Information has reached Clearfield to the effect that the city of Detroit—where many automobiles are built every year—has ordered one hundred gasoline tanks removed from beneath the sidewalks of that city, giving their owners a certain period of time within which the order must be obeyed. The city of Detroit evidently believes that gasoline tanks located under sidewalks are dangerous or an order of this kind would not have been issued. Gasoline is a dangerous substance at any time, but when exposed to possible ignition from cigar or cigarette ends it becomes a menace to life and property. There certainly can be no criticism of the action of council in declining to be a party to the placing of gasoline tanks beneath the sidewalks of the borough, and if there are any such tanks already so located they should be removed at once.

AS IT SHOULD BE HERE

"The habit of selling cigarettes to minors is being closely watched by the local authorities, and it is very probable that a number of arrests will follow in the near future unless the practice is stopped. Last week one local merchant found himself in the clutches of the law and was compelled to pay the fine and costs. Heretofore it has been a very easy matter for youths to go into certain cigar stores and purchase cigarettes, no question being asked. Since it is rumored the police will make arrests the practice has been abated to a great extent."

No, this did not occur in Clearfield, but in St. Marys, Elk county, a town in which the people are said to be less cultured than here, but where they appear to have more concern for the moral and physical welfare of the boys than they have in Clearfield.

TWENTY YEARS HENCE

(From the Files of the Progress 1934)

Some malicious person set fire to the ancient frame building along the river front opposite the Point last night and the structure was consumed. The oldest inhabitant states that that building was erected in 1867 and was one of Clearfield's famous landmarks.

The "last timber tract" in Clearfield county was cleared of its product this summer, the logs being sold to the New York Central railroad to be used in the erection of its new station at Munson.

The supreme court has fixed November 14 as the date upon which argument will be heard in the DuBois glass factory case, begun in the county court about two decades ago.

Alex Wallace reports that he will have about $3000 worth of ginseng plants for the market this year Alex's cranberry bog, in the Gum Swamp district, netted him a profit of several thousand dollars this year

Announcement is made that the company headed by "Red" Delaney will erect a factory and begin the manufacture of the combination wheelbarrow and snow plow invented by Mr. Delaney. It is expected that the plant will be ready for operation early in the spring.

God of the hosts that fight and die.
Mid smoke and din, and shot and shell,
Through all the noises of a bell—
The curse, the groan, the battle-cry,

Until at last we come to dwell
Near Thee, on high.

God of the multitudes that groan,
And yet strive on where cannon rolls,
Where death hews down its bloody tolls,
Whose weary hearts begin to moan
Amid the battle's sullen drone,
O Father, hear our humble prayer!
Protect this country bright and fair!
We lean our swords, we lean our souls,
On Thee alone. Amen.

RAILROAD

PENNSY TRAINS WILL CARRY GIFTS FREE

That the Pennsy will aid in the great philanthropic work of carrying gifts of all descriptions to the thousands of children bereft of parents in the awful catastrophe now sweeping European contries was announced yesterday afternoon at the office of Division Freight Agent W C. Glynn, of Altoona

All freight agents on the Pennsy system will be notified to the effect that the company will accept free shipments of any weight, destined for any European town or city. These shipments will be forwarded by freight over the Pennsy lines to New York. From the metropolis a United States cruiser will convey the gifts to Liverpool, where they will be taken to the Belgian legation in that city, which will have direct charge of tha final distribution among the needy children of Europe

This order, according to Mr. Glynn, becomes effective immediately, and those who desire to make gifts to the Belgian refuges and all other children and sufferers from the war, are urged to bring their shipments to the nearest Pennsy freight station, where they will be promptly accepted All consignments of Yuletide gifts should be directed to Monsignor P. M Malli, the Blegian consul located in New York who will attend to having all gifts placed aboard the United States cruiser, which will sail on November 3

BREATHE FREELY! OPEN NOSTRILS AND STUFFED HEAD—END CATARRH

Instant Relief When Nose and Head are Clogged from a Cold. Stops Nasty Catarrhal Discharges. Dull Headache Vanishes.

Try "Ely's Cream Balm."

Get a small bottle anyway, just to try it—Apply a little in the nostrils and instantly your clogged nose and stopped air passages of the head will open; you will breathe freely; dullness and headache disappear. By morning! the catarrh, cold-in-head or catarrhal sore throat will be gone.

End such misery now. Get the small bottle of "Ely's Cream Balm" at any drug store. This sweet, fragrant balm dissolves by the heat of the nostrils: penetrates and heals the inflamed, swollen membrane, which lines the nose, head and throat; clears the air passages; stops nasty discharges and a feeling of cleansing, soothing relief comes immediately.

Don't lay awake tonight struggling for breath, with head stuffed; nostrils closed, hawking and blowing. Catarrh or a cold, with its running nose, foul mucous dropping into the throat and raw dryness is distressing but truly needless.

Put your faith—just once—in "Ely's Cream Balm" and your cold or catarrh will surely disappear.

Get a Victrola for your boat

Boats of every kind, from the modest canoe to the palatial steam yacht, carry a Victrola nowadays.

CHAPTER XXXVI.

Detail.

Across the plain purple shadows were sweeping, close-ranked, like some vast dark army invading the land, pouring on over the rampart of mountains in the east.

Within the rim of hills that ringed the plain like the chipped and broken flange of a titanic saucer, silence brooded and solitude held sway—dwarfing the town of Detail that occupied the approximate middle of the sagebrush waste, to proportions even less significant than might be inferred from the candor of its christening.

A platform, a siding, a water tank, a Wells-Fargo office and a telegraph and ticket office, backed by three rough frame buildings; that is Detail itemized completely.

Shortly after nightfall the steel ribbons of the Santa Fe began to hum. A headlight peered suspiciously round a shoulder of the eastern range, took heart of courage to find the plain still wrapped in peace, and trudged stolidly toward Detail, the engine whose eye it was pulling after it a string of freight cars, both flat and box.

At Detail the train paused. Its crew alighted and engaged in animated argument. Detail gathered that the excitement was due to the unaccountable disappearance of the caboose; none seemed to have any notion as to how it could have broken loose; yet missing it conspicuously was.

In the pause that followed, while a report was telegraphed to headquarters and instructions returned to proceed without delay, one of the trainmen spied a boyish figure lurking in the open door of an empty box car. Cunningly boarding this car from the opposite side, the trainman caught the skulker unawares and booted him vaingloriously into the night.

As the figure alighted and took to its heels, losing itself in the darkness, it uttered a cry of pained surprise and protest which drew a wrinkle of astonishment between the brows of the trainman.

"Sounded like a woman's voice," he mused; then dismissed the suggestion as obviously absurd.

It was not. . . .

Shortly after the freight train had gone on its way—before, indeed, the glimmer of its rear lights had been lost among the western hills—a second headlight appeared in the east, swept swiftly across the plain and in turn stopped at Detail.

The second bird-of-passage proved to be a locomotive drawing a single car—a Pullman.

Hardly had it run past the switch, however, when the brakeman dropped down, ran quickly back to the switch and threw it open.

Promptly the train backed on to the siding.

As the Pullman jolted across the frogs the brakeman, interposing himself between it and the tender, released the coupling.

By the time that the Pullman had come to a full stop on the siding, the locomotive was swinging westward like a scared jackrabbit—though no such milk-and-watery characterization of the traitor passed the lips of any one of the three men who presently appeared on the Pullman's platform and shook impotent fists in the direction taken by the fugitive engine.

When the last of these had run temporarily out of breath and blasphemy a brief silence fell, punctuated by groans from each, and concluded by the sound of a voice calling from the interior of the car—a voice as strangely sonorous of tone as it was curiously querulous of accent.

The three men immediately ran back into the car and presented themselves with countenances variously apologetic, to one who occupied a corner of the drawing room: a man wrapped in a steamer rug and a cloud of fury.

Now when he had drained the muddy froth of profanity from his temper it left a clear and effervescent well of virulent humor: the wrath of the valetudinarian began to vent itself upon the hapless heads of the trio who stood before him.

While this was in process, the person of boyish appearance, who had been keeping religiously aloof and inconspicuous in the background of Detail ever since that unhappy affair with the trainman, stole quietly up to the rear of the stalled Pullman, climbed aboard, and creeping down the aisle unceremoniously interrupted the conference just as the invalid was polishing off a rude but honest opinion of the intellectual caliber of one of the three named Marrophat, who figured as his right-hand man and familiar genius.

"Amen to that!" the boyish person ejaculated with candid fervor, leaning gracelessly in the doorway. "There's many a true word spoken in wrath, Mr. Marrophat. Father [illegible] only one thing—your masterly way with a revolver. From what I've seen of that, this day, I'll go bail that the only safe place for a man you pull a gun on is right in front of the muzzle. There's something downright uncanny in the way you can hit anything but what you aim at!"

"Judith!" exclaimed the invalid. "Where did you drop from?"

"From that freight," Judith explained carelessly, neglecting to elucidate the exact fashion of her drop. "I judged you'd be along presently, and thought I'd like to learn the news. Well—what luck?"

Her father shrugged with his one movable shoulder. Mr. Marrophat grunted indignantly. The others shuffled uneasily and looked all ways but one—at the girl in man's clothing.

"None?" Judith interpreted. "You don't mean to tell me that after I had taken all that trouble—cast the caboose loose in the middle of that trestle at the risk of my life—you didn't have the nerve to go through with the business!"

"We went through with it all right," replied Marrophat defensively; "but as usual, they were too quick for us. They jumped out and dropped off the trestle before our engine hit the caboose. We smashed that to kindling wood—but they got away just in time to miss the crash. And by the time we had stopped and calmed down the engineer—well, it was dark and no way of telling which way they had run."

The girl started to speak, but merely dropped limp hands at her sides and rolled her eyes helplessly.

"We do our best," Marrophat observed. "We can't be blamed if something — somehow — always happens to tip the others off."

The girl swung to face him with blazing eyes. "Just what does that mean?" she demanded in a dangerous voice.

Marrophat lifted his shoulders. "Nothing—much," he allowed. "I am only thinking how strange it is that Mr. Law can't be caught by any sort of stratagem—when you are on the job, Miss Judith!"

The girl's hands were clenched into fists, white knuckles showing through the flesh. "You contemptible puppy!" she snapped. . . .

But on this her voice failed; for her eyes traveled past the person of Mr. Marrophat to the doorway of the drawing room and found it framing a stranger.

"Excuse me, friends," he offered in a lazy, semi-humorous drawl. "It pains me considerable to butt in on this happy family gathering, but business is business, same as usual, and I got to ast you-all to please put up your hands!"

"What do you want?" the invalid demanded.

"Why," drawled the bandit, "nothing in particular—only your cash. Shell out, if you please—gents all and the lady, too." He ran an appreciative glance down the figure which Judith's disguise revealed rather than concealed. "If you'll pardon my takin' notice," he amended. "Perhaps I wouldn't if the lady's clothes didn't fit her so all-fired quick!"

"Keep a civil tongue in your head, my man!" Judith counseled, without any show of fear.

At the same time her father's voice brought her to her senses.

"Judith! Be quiet. Let me deal with this gentleman. I am sure we can come to some arrangement."

"You bet your life," agreed the gentleman as the girl mutinously stepped back. "I know what I want, and you-all know you got it: so the name of the said arrangement is just 'shell out.'"

"One minute," the invalid interposed. "Don't misunderstand me: I guarantee you shall be amply satisfied. I give you my word—the word of Seneca Trine."

The eyes of the bandit widened. "No? Is that so? Seneca Trine, the railroad king? Sure's you're born you're him: I've seen your picture in the papers a dozen times. Well, now, it looks like I'd drawn a full house to this pair of deuces, don't it? You ought to be able to pay something handsome—"

"I'll pay you far more handsomely than you dream of if you'll do as I wish," Trine interrupted quickly. "Do me the service I wish—and name your price, whatever it is, you shall have it!"

"Nothing could be fairer'n that!" the two-gun man admitted suspiciously. "But what's the number of this here service—like you call it?"

"Listen to me." Trine bent his head forward and jabbed the air with an emphatic forefinger. "What's the life of a man worth in this neck of the woods?"

"How much you [illegible]t?"

"I'll pay you [illegible] thousand dollars for the life of [illegible]e man I will name."

The eyes of the bandit narrowed. "Hold on, my friend: is that what you call my naming my own price?"

"Name it, then," said Trine.

"Give me a thousand on account," said the other, "and a paper saying you'll pay me nineteen thousand more in exchange for it and one dead man, properly identified as the one you want—signed by you—and your man's as good as dead this minute, providing he's in riding distance of this here car."

Trine waved his hand at his secretary. "Jimmy, find a thousand dollars for this gentleman. Make out the paper he indicates for the balance, and I'll sign it."

"Ain't you powerful trustful, Mr. Trine? How do you know I'll do anything more'n pocket that thousand and fade delicately away."

"My daughter and this gentleman, Mr. Marrophat, will accompany you."

"Oh, that's the way of it, is it?"

"Name?" interjected the secretary, writing busily with the top of his attache case for a desk.

"Slade," said the bandit, "James Slade." Again Trine punctured the atmosphere with his index finger. "The man whose life I want is named Alan Law. He is running away with my daughter, Rose, accompanied by a person named Barcus, disguised as a Pullman porter—"

"The three of them having recent' escaped from a train wreck up yonder on the trestle?" Hopi Jim interposed.

"You've met them?" Judith demanded, whirling round.

"About an hour ago, or maybe an hour and a half," Hopi Jim replied, "a good ways down the road. They stopped and ast where they could get put up fer the night. I kindly directed them on to Mesa, down in the Painted hills yonder.'

BIG EATERS GET KIDNEY TROUBLE

Take Salts at first sign of Bladder Irritation or Backache.

The American men and women must guard constantly against Kidney trouble, because we eat too much and all our food is rich. Our blood is filled with uric acid which the kidneys strive to filter out, they weaken from overwork, become sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead; your back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment or you are obliged to seek releif two or three times during the night; if you suffer with sick headache or dizzy nervous spells, acid stomach, or have rheumatism when the weather is bad, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys, to neutralize the acids in the urine, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia water beverage, and belongs in every home, because nobody can make a mistake by having a good kidney flushing any time.

Millions of men on the European battlefield are today mechanically obeying this command. May we call you to "Attention" to throughtfully consider the same words in the form of a reminder rather than a command.

We are now READY with our fall line of Heating Stoves in both single and double heaters and in the selection of same it has been our AIM to select the one essential thing in a heating stove and that is its Heat Radiating Qualities rather than useless supposed advantages that add expense for mere show. A stove to stand FIRE and radiate heat must have the firebox and combustion space constructed in correct proportion, of good material by general good workmanship. In seeking this we have not lost sight of the fact that beautiful and symmetrical lines may be combined with these qualifications and have selected accordingly. It will give us pleasure to give you the pass word and show you through "our line." We have no fortifications at the door, no Aircraft, no Submarines. YOU ARE WELCOME.

Nation-Wide Cotton Week at Leonardson's, Beginning Thursday, October 22, Ending Thursday, October 29

Join the National Cotton Goods Buying Movement; Buy cotton goods during this week at attractive prices and help the South find a market for her surplus cotton. Remember every purchase helps. We are going to sacrifice profits and ask you to help by buying at least a dollar's worth of cotton goods or fabrics during this event.

We must remember each section of our country is dependent upon the other for its prosperity. On account of the war there is a surplus of cotton within our borders, and you can help to give work to thousands upon thousands of American workers if you purchase an extra dollar's worth of goods made of cotton during our Nation-wide cotton goods week. Help your neighbors in the south find a market for their cotton crop at home. We are doing our part by offering staple cotton fabrics at wholesale prices.

at once, as the Germans were firing on the hospital, and he had not been out an hour before it was completely blown up, and many officers and men must have perished.

Private Charles Dudley Moore of the Yorkshire Light Infantry, who was at Mons, and is now at Lynn, had the misfortune to be wounded half an hour after he went into action.

"The shrapnel shells of the Germans were bursting over the trenches where we were lying and I was struck in the foot with a piece of shell which took the sole of my boot clean off. Five minutes later when I was trying to help a fellow near me who had been hit in the shoulder I was struck in the right thigh by a pellet from a shrapnel shell. I fired one more shot after that. I aimed at the driver of a German machine gun and hit him. This was my first experience of actual fighting, and I can tell you it is a funny sensation at first to see the shells bursting near and around you, to hear the bullets whistling by you, and to see men being killed and wounded near you, but you soon get used to it all. It tries your nerves a bit at first, but you soon get in the way of it.

"I have the greatest admiration for German artillery, but their infantry is absolutely useless. They fire from the hip and take no aim at all. The Germans are also badly fed. At the hospital at Amiens I saw a wounded German officer who told me he and the others had been living on anything they could lay hold of, and that they had even eaten grass. This officer, speaking of the barbarous acts of the German soldiers, said that the men were forced to do it—sometimes with a revolver levelled at their heads."

Private J. R. Tait, of the Second Essex Regiment, who was wounded at Mons, also speaks with respect of the German artillery. Writing home, he says, in the course of a description of the fighting.

"We had several charges with their infantry. We find they do not like the bayonets. Their rifle shooting is rotten; I don't believe they could hit a haystack at 100 yards. Their field artillery is good, and we don't like their sharpnel. I heard our men singing that famous song 'Get out and get under,' and know that for an hour in our trench it would make any one keen under, what with the shells and machine guns. I have been in three battles in four days."

GERMAN ATTACKS GROW IN FIERCENESS

ALLIES HAVE BEEN ABLE TO REPULSE ALL ASSULTS

London Terrorized Over Expected Visit From Zeppelin Airships

POWERFUL SEARCHLIGHTS SWEEP THE SKY

City Kept in Darkness at Night— Aeroplane Sheds are Being Constructed at Antwerp, Brussels and Other Belgian Towns for the Operation of Zeppelins—One Hundred Thousand Destitute Belgians in London and More On the Way—Suppression of a Royailst Revolt in Portugal—United States Protests Against British Seizure of American Tank Steamer.

Attacks by the kaiser's troops all along the 350-mile battle line, in northern France, were repulsed yesterday by the allied armies, according to the French official announcement.

These assaults following the failure of the kaiser's dash for Dunkirk, were apparently aimed to find a weak point in the defenders' lines.

At La Bassee, south of Lille, the German attack was exceptionally violent.

The French statement indicated that the allies' forces which had advanced from Ypres to Roulers had been forced to withdraw toward Ypres.

(By International News Service)

Fierce German Attacks Repulsed

Paris, Oct. 21—Attacks by the German forces along the Franco-Belgian front are increasing in violence, but are being repulsed, according to this afternoon's official statement.

The fierceness of the attacks is attributed to strong reinforcements received by the Germans. Particularly violent attacks have been repulsed at Nieuport, Dixmunde and Labasse.

It is apparent that the victories of the allies may screen an unexpecetd move by the Germans.

Fear a Zeppelin Raid

London, Oct. 21.—Imminence of a German aerial raid is causing fear here. Telegrams from Rotterdam and Amsterdam state that the German factories, where aeroplanes and Zeppelin derigibles are constructed are working day and night. Sheds are being constructed at Antwerp, Brussels and other Belgian points.

London in Darkness

London is darkened at night, while powerful government search lights sweep the sky.

One hundred thousand Belgian refugees are here. penniless and 50,000 more soon will be, and the stream continues.

MRS. CARMAN SAID TO HAVE CONFESSED

Colored Maid Swears to This at the Trial Today

SAW HER WITH PISTOL IN HAND

Testimony of This Witness a Severe Blow to the Defense in the Murder Trial—Insane Jealousy of Husband Given as Motive for the Killing of Mrs. Bailey.

(By International News Service)

Mineola, Oct., 21 —Many of yesterday's witnesses in the trial of Mrs. Florence Carman, charged with the murder of Mrs. Louse Bailey in the office of the prisoner's husband were called to establish the alleged motive—jealousy. One was Mrs. Elizabeth Varance, a trained nurse, whose face Mrs. Carman slapped when she saw Dr. Carman give her money and allow her to kiss him, it was testified. Another was Gaston Boissannault, former chief of the Canadian secret service and now manager of the company that sold the wife of the physician a "mechanical eavesdropper" so she might hear what wnet on in her husband's private office when women patients were there. Then there was the man who installed the instruments.

A new fact was develcped which the prosecution seemed to consider significant. Physicians who performed the autopsy upon the victim of the tragedy in the doctor's office, testified that she would have become a mother had she lived.

Says Mrs. Carman Confessed

Celia Coleman, the colored maid in the Carman home was unexpectedly called as the first witness today She testified that her mistress Mrs Carman, confessed the murder to her, that on the evening of the murder Mrs. Carman went out the kitchen door, she heard a shot a few moments later. and in a moment or two Mrs. Carman returned with a pistol in hand Star witness' testimony was a severe blow to defense. Mrs. Carman had tears in her eyes during her maid's testimony.

Celia Coleman on being cross examined, admitted she perjured her self before the coroner's jury

Story of the Crime.

Mrs. Bailey was shot and killed early in the evening of June 30, 1914, in the office of Dr. Carman, located on the first floor of the house She was just about to leave when a hand was thrust through a pane of glass in the window and a shot fired from a revolver The woman died almost instantly. Suspicion pointed at once to Mrs Carman, who was intensely jealous of her husband. She admitted that she had suspected her husband with showing too much attention to other women and that she had installed a dictaphone leading from his office to her bedroom. She denied any connection with the shooting, however, saying she was lying down in her room on the second floor of the house when the shot was fired.

The authorities found an important witness in Frank J. Farrel, a tramp, who said he saw a woman resembling Mrs. Carman at the time the shot was fired, and Mrs. Carman's negro house maid said that her mistress passed through the kitchen on her way to her room immediately after the shot telling her not to tell any persons that she had seen her On the strength of this testimony the grand jury [illegible] Mrs Carman for second degree murder and she was released on [illegible]. A week or so afterward [illegible] testimony was presented to the grand jury and [illegible] murder was [illegible] Mrs. Carman was then locked up.

It is understood [illegible] the prosecution [illegible] this [illegible] thing the [illegible] to the [illegible] window and [illegible] the [illegible] This is strengthened by the fact that immediately prior to the shooting Mrs. Carman called downstairs to her daughter to stop playing the piano it being alleged [illegible] to hear over the dictaphone when the piano was being played

Most of the members of the orchestra are young girls, and their instrumental music give promise of great success in future years

John W. Barratt, Clearfield county chairman of the Washington party, yesterday received the following telegram from A. Nevin Detrich,

"Philadelphia, Oct. 20, 1914.

John W. Barratt, Clearfield, Pa.

"Colonel Roosevelt has compelled us to deliver him in New York at 4 o'clock Thursday afternoon, consequently he must start the day at Tyrone, cutting out DuBois and Clearfield.

"Tremendous disappointment to me, as it will be to you."

"A. NEVIN DETRICH."

It is supposed that Colonel Roosevelt considers that he is needed in New York more than he is in Pennsylvania. As Chairman Detrich says, the failure of Colonel Roosevelt to come into Clearfield county is a great disappointment to the local workers of the Washington party, who had prepared to give the Colonel a hearty welcome.

The voters of Clearfield county, as well as everybody else, wanted to see the famous former president, who continues to be the idol of the friends of good government

While Colonel Roosevelt will be unable to visit Clearfield county, the opponents of Penroseism may rest assured that he is heartily in accord with the efforts the honest people of this state are making to oust the Penrose machine from the state.

BAPTIST CONVENTION RAPS RUM TRAFFIC IN STATE

Scranton, Pa., Oct. 21—Sweeping attacks on the liquor traffic in Pennsylvania marked the sessions yesterday of the seventh anniversary of the Baptist general convention in the Immanuel Baptist church.

The 500 ministers and lay delegates adopted a report from Rev. Dr. Samuel Z. Batten, of Philadelphia, secretary of the social service committee. The report recommended agitation for adequate child labor law, legislation for the proper segregation of feeble-minded persons and a county option law as a step towards the ultimate elimination of the liquor evil.

DR. STOUGH TALKS TO MINERS AT DUBOIS

DuBois, Oct. 21.—Delegation of several hundred persons from Punxsutawney and Big Run, Jefferson county, attended the meeting at the Stough tabernacle last evening. They carried a banner upon which was printed "Big Run Against Booze," "Remonstrance vs. Whiskey, 13 to 1." "Not Our Fault That We Have Two Saloons—We Blame the Judge."

Jefferson county, at the January term of license court, petitioned Judge John W. Reed with more than 1200 names, containing 60 per cent. of the voters of the county, to refuse all licenses. The licenses were granted.

Last night was miners' night at the tabernacle; and while there was a large attendance, much interest centered in the Big Run banner. The song of the night was "Pennsylvania Dry," which was converted into "Clearfield county dry"; and the 3000 persons sang it as though they meant it Last night opened the last week of the campaign

The amount of the budget has been raised, and the number of trail-hitters increased to about 2000 The men employed at the Adrian iron furnace marched to the tabernacle in a body and presented the evangelist with a roll of paper which he said was of the proper color

Alleged That They Have Occupied Places in Bukavina Province

ALSO CAPTURED ONE RUSSIAN GENERAL

Situation in the East Has Not Materially Changed—Russians Making Large Numbers of Prisoners—Heavy Fighting Around Praemysl, Considerable Damage Being Done to the Forts—Battle Along the Vistula Still Continues—Germans and Austrians Are on the Defensive.

Vienna, Oct. 20, via Berlin and Amsterdam, Oct. 21.—Austrian successes in Galicia and Bukavina and the capture of a Russian general are officially announced.

This is the first news that the Austrians have taken the offensive in the province of Bukavina. The Austrians have occupied Stryj, 42 miles south of Lemberg, and Kucsurmare and Sereth, in Bukavina.

Situation Unchanged

Peargrad, Oct. 21.—Reports agree that the situation in the east has not changed, although the armies are in close touch along the East Prussian frontier and across Poland and Galicia.

The Russians are making large numbers of prisoners. Heavy fighting is still going on around Praemysl and the cupolas of the forts surrounding the town are said to have been destroyed by the big Russian siege guns, while the forts have been mined and dismantled and the magazines blown up. The town itself, however, has not been damaged.

Vistula Battle Continues

The battle continues on the Vistula, San and Dniester rivers. There is a system of great entrenchments on the Russian side and the entire front is furnished with powerful guns which day and night hurl thousands of projectiles into the enemy's lines. The Austrians and Germans have been obliged to remain on the defensive.

Protrograd, Oct. 21.—It is officially stated by the Russian news agency, that the Austro-German forces were driven back forty-five miles west of the Vistula. The Russian advance posts are in the vicinity Skierniewice a railroad center, southwest of Warsaw.

FOUGHT ALL DAY, MARCHED ALL NIGHT

Interesting Stories of the War Told by English Soldiers

ALLEGED GERMAN BARBARITIES

Stated That They Fired on Red Cross Hospitals, Placed Women and Children in Front of Them as Shields—Also Charged With Bayoneting the Wounded, Under Orders of Their Officers.

By Lawrence Easton.

Following are several more stories of incidents connected with the European war, told by wounded British soldiers:

A Jarrow constable who is serving in the Royal Field Artilery, and who is now in hospital at Leicester, writing to his police colleagues. describes the British Expeditionary Force work during a certain undated period as "fighting all day and marching all night."

"The Germans must have lost thousands of men. The brutality of our foe was shameful. They put the women and children in front for us to shoot, and in many cases they fired on our Red Cross. Such work will surely be stopped by the Great Architect of the Universe. The French people were very good to us, giving us eggs, milk, bread, fruit, and wine in plenty. I hope my dear wife and children are being provided for during my absence. It is my only thought all day."

William Henry Farrol, a reservist of the Royal Warwickshire regiment, who was wounded in the battle at Mons, tells of the fighting there and at Thuin and Cambrai.

"The slaughter during these three days," he says, "was terrible the loss on the German side being far more severe than that of the allies. The scene was rendered all the more horrible by the barbarous actions of the German army. Every village they passed through they set on fire, and it made the hearts of the allied soldiers ache to see the Belgian and French people with their poor little children leaving their homes. The Germans have suffered already for it, and we shall make them suffer more for it before we have done with them. The French and Belgian people have been very good t ous. They are good natured people and though they could ill afford it, they gave us fruit and cigarettes."

Farrol adds that he had not been long in the field hospital, where there were between 200 and 300 wounded soldiers, before the order came for all men who could walk to [illegible]

October 21, 1914

Good evening! Yes, the truth is mighty and will prevail; but it hurts when it hits us straight in the face.

It always takes two to make a bargain, but one lawyer can upset a marriage in short order.

After the war is over the facts will be made plain and the lies and misrepresentations be forgotten.

President Wilson's war tax is a tribute—another one—to the ability of the Democratic party to blunder.

If every friend of good government will vote for Gifford Pinchot both Penrose and his friend Palmer will be snowed under next month.

Marse Henry Watterson has forgiven President Wilson, but the editor of the Courier-Journal will never forget the little episode of 1912.

Don't remain out of the woods merely because there is no game there; you will benefit in health by tramping through the dells and climbing the hills.

Those who listened to the musical concert in the opera house last night shared in a rich treat. Those who remained at home to gossip or otherwise enjoy themselves will never know what they missed.

Those Mexicans are innocent people. They fight on the border, wound Americans and then send their own wounded soldiers across the line for treatment, possibly under the belief that Uncle Sam is running a big hospital.

Beware of the man who whispers slanders about the Washington party candidates. If what he tells you behind the door were true every Republican newspaper in the state would print it under scare heads on the first page.

PALMER WILL NOT WITHDRAW

It is officially stated that A. Mitchell Palmer will not withdraw as the Democratic candidate for United States senator. There was very little expectation among those who know Palmer that he would get off the ticket and thus make the election of Gifford Pinchot certain. Palmer was one of the reorganizers of the Democratic party in Pennsylvania. He was a reorganizer for personal profit only. He could not boss the old Democratic party, and as his greatest ambition was to be a boss he helped to reorganize the Democratic party and is today one of the most arrogant political bosses in the country.

The old Democratic party of the state was always accused of being an annex to the Quay machine. The charge was probably true. The course pursued by Palmer causes many people to believe that he seeks to form a coalition with the Penrose machine in order that he may continue to boss the party. Palmer's candidacy cannot but be regarded as a good thing for Penrose. If Palmer were to ask the voters of the reorganized Democratic party to support Penrose they would refuse, but by remaining on the ticket Palmer will accomplish this end by fooling a large number of Democrats to vote for him and thus help the Penrose cause along.

Whatever the result of the election may be, the course being pursued by Palmer will be condemned by every citizen who now sees in the candidacy of Gifford Pinchot an opportunity to defeat Penrose and forever wipe off the political map of Pennsylvania the blotch of Penroseism. If Palmer were hired by Penrose to remain on the Democratic ticket he could not do more effective work for the agent of the liquor ring than he is doing in refusing to give the people a chance to elect Pinchot and give the state of Pennsylvania a United States senator who cannot be bought, coaxed or forced to support measures inimical to the welfare of the people.

GOOD FORESIGHT

Sometime ago a business firm in Clearfield appealed to the borough council for permission to place a gasoline tank under the pavement in front of its store, affirming that such tanks are to be found in many large cities, the authorities of which were satisfied that no danger to the public would ensue. Burgess Callahan opposed the proposition, and council refused its permission. There was no prejudice in the action of the burgess and council, the refusal of the petition being based solely upon the probable danger to human life and to property should permission be granted to place a gasoline tank beneath the sidewalk.

Information has reached Clearfield to the effect that the city of Detroit—where many automobiles are built every year—has ordered one hundred gasoline tanks removed from beneath the sidewalks of that city, giving their owners a certain period of time within which the order must be obeyed. The city of Detroit evidently believes that gasoline tanks located under sidewalks are dangerous or an order of this kind would not have been issued. Gasoline is a dangerous substance at any time, but when exposed to possible ignition from cigar or cigarette ends it becomes a menace to life and property. There certainly can be no criticism of the action of council in declining to be a party to the placing of gasoline tanks beneath the sidewalks of the borough, and if there are any such tanks already so located they should be removed at once.

AS IT SHOULD BE HERE

"The habit of selling cigarettes to minors is being closely watched by the local authorities, and it is very probable that a number of arrests will follow in the near future unless the practice is stopped. Last week one local merchant found himself in the clutches of the law and was compelled to pay the fine and costs. Heretofore it has been a very easy matter for youths to go into certain cigar stores and purchase cigarettes, no question being asked. Since it is rumored the police will make arrests the practice has been abated to a great extent."

No, this did not occur in Clearfield, but in St. Marys, Elk county, a town in which the people are said to be less cultured than here, but where they appear to have more concern for the moral and physical welfare of the boys than they have in Clearfield.

TWENTY YEARS HENCE

(From the Files of the Progress 1934)

Some malicious person set fire to the ancient frame building along the river front opposite the Point last night and the structure was consumed. The oldest inhabitant states that that building was erected in 1867 and was one of Clearfield's famous landmarks.

The "last timber tract" in Clearfield county was cleared of its product this summer, the logs being sold to the New York Central railroad to be used in the erection of its new station at Munson.

The supreme court has fixed November 14 as the date upon which argument will be heard in the DuBois glass factory case, begun in the county court about two decades ago.

Alex Wallace reports that he will have about $3000 worth of ginseng plants for the market this year. Alex's cranberry bog, in the Gum Swamp district, netted him a profit of several thousand dollars this year.

Announcement is made that the company headed by "Red" Delaney will erect a factory and begin the manufacture of the combination wheelbarrow and snow plow invented by Mr. Delaney. It is expected that the plant will be ready for operation early in the spring.

Whose weary hearts begin to moan
Amid the battle's sullen drone,
O Father, hear our humble prayer!
Protect this country bright and fair!
We lean our swords, we lean our souls,
On Thee alone. Amen.

PENNSY TRAINS WILL CARRY GIFTS FREE

That the Pennsy will aid in the great philanthropic work of carrying gifts of all descriptions to the thousands of children bereft of parents in the awful catastrophe now sweeping European contries was announced yesterday afternoon at the office of Division Freight Agent W. C. Glynn, of Altoona.

All freight agents on the Pennsy system will be notified to the effect that the company will accept free shipments of any weight, destined for any European town or city. These shipments will be forwarded by freight over the Pennsy lines to New York. From the metropolis a United States cruiser will convey the gifts to Liverpool, where they will be taken to the Belgian legation in that city, which will have direct charge of the final distribution among the needy children of Europe.

This order, according to Mr. Glynn, becomes effective immediately, and those who desire to make gifts to the Belgian refugees and all other children and sufferers from the war, are urged to bring their shipments to the nearest Pennsy freight station, where they will be promptly accepted. All consignments of Yuletide gifts should be directed to Monsignor P. M. Malli, the Belgian consul located in New York, who will attend to having all gifts placed aboard the United States cruiser, which will sail on November 3.

Pullman Profits Grow

The year ended July 31, 1914, was a profitable one for the Pullman company, according to its annual report just issued. The net income after the payment of expenses and before charging out for depreciation was $21,397,463, which was equal to 17.82 per cent. earned on the $120,000,000 capital, as compared with 16.566 per cent. earned on the same stock the previous year. The total income was $44,725,514, against $42,860,891, with net income of $21,397,463, as compared with $19,870,206. The balance after the payment of dividends was $1,245,353 against $1,541,602 on July 31,1913.

BREATHE FREELY! OPEN NOSTRILS AND STUFFED HEAD---END CATARRH

Instant Relief When Nose and Head are Clogged from a Cold. Stops Nasty Catarrhal Discharges. Dull Headache Vanishes.

Try "Ely's Cream Balm."

Get a small bottle anyay, just to try it—Apply a little in the nostrils and instantly your clogged nose and stopped air passages of the head will open; you will breathe freely; dullness and headache disappear. By morning! the catarrh, cold-in-head or catarrhal sore thoat will be gone.

End such misery now. Get the small bottle of "Ely's Cream Balm" at any drug store. This sweet, fragrant balm dissolves by the heat of the nostrils: penetrates and heals the inflamed, swollen membrane, which lines the nose, head and throat; clears the air passages; stops nasty discharges and a feeling of cleansing, soothing relief comes immediately.

Don't lay awake tonight struggling for breath, with head stuffed; nostril closed, hawking and blowing. Catarrh or a cold, with its running nose, foul mucous dropping into the throat and raw dryness is distressing but truly needless.

Put your faith—just once—in "Ely's Cream Balm" and your cold or catarrh will surely disappear.

CHAPTER XXXVI.

Detail.

Across the plain purple shadows were sweeping, close-ranked, like some vast dark army invading the land, pouring on over the rampart of mountains in the east.

Within the rim of hills that ringed the plain like the chipped and broken flange of a titanic saucer, silence brooded and solitude held sway—dwarfing the town of Detail that occupied the approximate middle of the sagebrush waste, to proportions even less significant than might be inferred from the candor of its christening.

A platform, a siding, a water tank, a Wells-Fargo office and a telegraph and ticket office, backed by three rough frame buildings; that is Detail itemized completely.

Shortly after nightfall the steel ribbons of the Santa Fe began to hum. A headlight peered suspiciously round a shoulder of the eastern range, took heart of courage to find the plain still wrapped in peace, and trudged stolidly toward Detail, the engine whose eye it was pulling after it a string of freight cars, both flat and box.

At Detail the train paused. Its crew alighted and engaged in animated argument. Detail gathered that the excitement was due to the unaccountable disappearance of the caboose; none seemed to have any notion as to how it could have broken loose; yet missing it conspicuously was.

In the pause that followed, while a report was telegraphed to headquarters and instructions returned to proceed without delay, one of the trainmen spied a boyish figure lurking in the open door of an empty box car. Cunningly boarding this car from the opposite side, the trainman caught the skulker unawares and booted him vaingloriously into the night.

As the figure alighted and took to its heels, losing itself in the darkness, it uttered a cry of pained surprise and protest which drew a wrinkle of astonishment between the brows of the trainman.

"Sounded like a woman's voice," he mused; then dismissed the suggestion as obviously absurd.

It was not. . . .

Shortly after the freight train had gone on its way—before, indeed, the glimmer of its rear lights had been lost among the western hills—a second headlight appeared in the east, swept swiftly across the plain and in turn stopped at Detail.

The second bird-of-passage proved to be a locomotive drawing a single car—a Pullman.

Hardly had it run past the switch, however, when the brakeman dropped down, ran quickly back to the switch and threw it open.

Promptly the train backed on to the siding.

As the Pullman jolted across the frogs the brakeman, interposing himself between it and the tender, released the coupling.

By the time that the Pullman had come to a full stop on the siding, the locomotive was swinging westward like a scared jackrabbit—though no such milk-and-watery characterization of the traitor passed the lips of any one of the three men who presently appeared on the Pullman's platform and shook impotent fists in the direction taken by the fugitive engine.

When the last of these had run temporarily out of breath and blasphemy a brief silence fell, punctuated by groans from each, and concluded by the sound of a voice calling from the interior of the car—a voice as strangely sonorous of tone as it was curiously querulous of accent.

The three men immediately ran back into the car and presented themselves with countenances variously apologetic, to one who occupied a corner of the drawing room: a man wrapped in a steamer rug and a cloud of fury.

Now when he had drained the muddy froth of profanity from his temper it left a clear and effervescent well of virulent humor: the wrath of the valetudinarian began to vent itself upon the hapless heads of the trio who stood before him.

While this was in process, the person of boyish appearance, who had been keeping religiously aloof and inconspicuous in the background of Detail ever since that unhappy affair with the trainman, stole quietly up to the rear of the stalled Pullman, climbed aboard, and creeping down the aisle unceremoniously interrupted the conference just as the invalid was polishing off a rude but honest opinion of the intellectual caliber of one of the three named Marrophat, who figured as his right-hand man and familiar genius.

"Amen to that!" the boyish person ejaculated with candid fervor, lounging gracelessly in the doorway. "There's many a true word spoken in wrath, Mr. Marrophat. Father [illegible] only one thing—your masterly way with a revolver. From what I've seen of that, this day, I'll go bail that the only safe place for a man you pull a gun on is right in front of the muzzle. There's something downright uncanny in the way you can hit anything but what you aim at!"

"Judith!" exclaimed the invalid. "Where did you drop from?"

"From that freight," Judith explained carelessly, neglecting to elucidate the exact fashion of her drop. "I judged you'd be along presently, and thought I'd like to learn the news. Well—what luck?"

Her father shrugged with his one movable shoulder. Mr. Marrophat grunted indignantly. The others shuffled uneasily and looked all ways but one—at the girl in man's clothing.

"None?" Judith interpreted. "You don't mean to tell me that after I had taken all that trouble—cast the caboose loose in the middle of that trestle at the risk of my life—you didn't have the nerve to go through with the business!"

"We went through with it all right," replied Marrophat defensively; "but as usual, they were too quick for us. They jumped out and dropped off the trestle before our engine hit the caboose. We smashed that to kindling wood—but they got away just in time to miss the crash. And by the time we had stopped and calmed down the engineer—well, it was dark and no way of telling which way they had run."

The girl started to speak, but merely dropped limp hands at her sides and rolled her eyes helplessly.

"We do our best," Marrophat observed. "We can't be blamed if something — somehow — always happens to tip the others off."

The girl swung to face him with blazing eyes. "Just what does that mean?" she demanded in a dangerous voice.

Marrophat lifted his shoulders. "Nothing—much," he allowed. "I am only thinking how strange it is that Mr. Law can't be caught by any sort of stratagem—when you are on the job, Miss Judith!"

The girl's hands were clenched into fists, white knuckles showing through the flesh. "You contemptible puppy!" she snapped. . . .

But on this her voice failed; for her eyes traveled past the person of Mr. Marrophat to the doorway of the drawing room and found it framing a stranger.

"Excuse me, friends," he offered in a lazy, semi-humorous drawl. "It pains me considerable to butt in on this happy family gathering, but business is business, same as usual, and I got to ast you-all to please put up your hands!"

"What do you want?" the invalid demanded.

"Why," drawled the bandit, "nothing in particular—only your cash. Shell out, if you please—gents all and the lady, too." He ran an appreciative glance down the figure which Judith's disguise revealed rather than concealed. "If you'll pardon my takin' notice," he amended. "Perhaps I wouldn't if the lady's clothes didn't fit her so all-fired quick!"

"Keep a civil tongue in your head, my man!" Judith counseled, without any show of fear.

At the same time her father's voice brought her to her senses.

"Judith! Be quiet. Let me deal with this gentleman. I am sure we can come to some arrangement."

"You bet your life," agreed the gentleman as the girl mutinously stepped back. "I know what I want, and you-all know you got it: so the name of the said arrangement is just 'shell out.'"

"One minute," the invalid interposed. "Don't misunderstand me: I guarantee you shall be amply satisfied. I give you my word—the word of Seneca Trine."

The eyes of the bandit widened. "No? Is that so? Seneca Trine, the railroad king? Sure's you're born you're him: I've seen your picture in the papers a dozen times. Well, now, it looks like I'd drawn a full house to this pair of deuces, don't it? You ought to be able to pay something handsome—"

"I'll pay you far more handsomely than you dream of if you'll do as I wish," Trine interrupted quickly. "Do me the service I wish—and name your price, whatever it is, you shall have it!"

"Nothing could be fairer'n that!" the two-gun man admitted suspiciously. "But what's the number of this here service—like you call it?"

"Listen to me." Trine bent his head forward and jabbed the air with an emphatic forefinger. "What's the life of a man worth in this neck of the woods?"

"How much you [illegible]t?"

"I'll pay you [illegible] thousand dollars for the life of the man I will name."

The eyes of the bandit narrowed. "Hold on, my friend: is that what you call my naming my own price?"

"Name it, then," said Trine.

"Give me a thousand on account," said the other, "and a paper saying you'll pay me nineteen thousand more in exchange for it and one dead man, properly identified as the one you want—signed by you—and your man's as good as dead this minute, providing he's in riding distance of this here car."

Trine waved his hand at his secretary. "Jimmy, find a thousand dollars for this gentleman. Make out the paper he indicates for the balance, and I'll sign it."

"Ain't you powerful trustful, Mr. Trine? How do you know I'll do anything more'n pocket that thousand and fade delicately away."

"My daughter and this gentleman, Mr. Marrophat, will accompany you."

"Oh, that's the way of it, is it?"

"Name?" interjected the secretary, writing busily with the top of his attache case for a desk.

"Slade," said the bandit, "James Slade." Again Trine punctured the atmosphere with his index finger. "The man whose life I want is named Alan Law. He is running away with my daughter, Rose, accompanied by a person named Barcus, disguised as a Pullman porter—"

"The three of them having recent' escaped from a train wreck up yonder on the trestle?" Hopi Jim interposed.

"You've met them?" Judith demanded, whirling round.

"About an hour ago, or maybe an hour and a half," Hopi Jim replied, "a good ways down the road. They stopped and ast where they could get put up fer the night. I kindly directed them on to Mesa, down in the Painted hills yonder."

BIG EATERS GET KIDNEY TROUBLE

Take Salts at first sign of Bladder Irritation or Backache.

The American men and women must guard constantly against Kidney trouble, because we eat too much and all our food is rich. Our blood is filled with uric acid which the kidneys strive to filter out, they weaken from overwork, become sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead; your back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment or you are obliged to seek rleief two or three times during the night; if you suffer with sick headache or dizzy nervous spells, acid stomach, or have rheumatism when the weather is bad, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys, to neutralize the acids in the urine, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia water beverage, and belongs in every home, because nobody can make a mistake by having a good kidney flushing any time.

READY! AIM! FIRE!

Millions of men on the European battlefield are today mechanically obeying this command. May we call you to "Attention" to throughtfully consider the same words in the form of a reminder rather than a command.

We are now READY with our fall line of Heating Stoves in both single and double heaters and in the selection of same it has been our AIM to select the one essential thing in a heating stove and that is its Heat Radiating Qualities rather than useless supposed advantages that add expense for mere show. A stove to stand FIRE and radiate heat must have the firebox and combustion space constructed in correct proportion, of good material by general good workmanship. In seeking this we have not lost sight of the fact that beautiful and symmetrical lines may be combined with these qualifications and have selected accordingly. It will give us pleasure to show you the pass word and show you through "our line." We have no fortifications at the door, no Aircraft, no Submarines. YOU ARE WELCOME.

Nation-Wide Cotton Week at Leonardson's, Beginning Thursday, October 22, Ending Thursday, October 29

Join the National Cotton Goods Buying Movement; Buy cotton goods during this week at attractive prices and help the South find a market for her surplus cotton. Remember every purchase helps. We are going to sacrifice profits and ask you to help by buying at least a dollar's worth of cotton goods or fabrics during this event.
We must remember each section of our country is dependent upon the other for its prosperity. On account of the war there is a surplus of cotton within our borders, and you can help to give work to thousands upon thousands of American workers if you purchase an extra dollar's worth of goods made of cotton during our Nation-wide cotton goods week. Help your neighbors in the south find a market for their cotton crop at home. We are doing our part by offering staple cotton fabrics at wholesale prices.

FOUGHT ALL DAY, MARCH ALL NIGHR

at once, as the Germans were firing on the hospital, and he had not been out an hour before it was completely blown up, and many officers and men muts have perished.

Private Charles Dudley Moore of the Yorkshire Light Infantry, who was at Mons, and is now at Lynn, had the misfortune to be wounded half an hour after he went into action.

"The shrapnel shells of the Germans were bursting over the trenches where we were lying and I was struck in the foot with a piece of shell which took the sole of my boot clean off. Five minutes later when I was trying to help a fellow near me who had been hit in the shoulder I was struck in the right thigh by a pellet from a shrapnel shell. I fired one more shot after that. I aimed at the driver of a German machine gun and hit him. This was my first experience of actual fighting, and I can tell you it is a funny sensation at first to see the shells bursting near and around you, to hear the bullets whistling by you, and to see men being killed and wounded near you, but you soon get used to it all. It tries your nerves a bit at first, but you soon get in the way of it.

"I have the greatest admiration for German artillery, but their infantry is absolutely useless. They fire from the hip and take no aim at all. The Germans are also badly fed. At the hospital at Amiens I saw a wounded German officer who told me he and the others had been living on anything they could lay hold of, and that they had even eaten grass. This officer, speaking of the barbarous acts of the German soldiers, said that the men were forced to do it—sometimes with a revolver levelled at their heads."

Private J. R. Tait, of the Second Essex Regiment, who was wounded at Mons, also speaks with respect of the German artillery. Writing home, he says, in the course of a description of the fighting.

"We had several charges with their infantry. We find they do not like the bayonets. Their rifle shooting is rotten; I don't believe they could hit a haystack at 100 yards. Their field artillery is good, and we don't like their sharpnel. I heard our men singing that famous song 'Get out and get under,' and know that for an hour in our trench it would make any one keep under, what with the shells and machine guns. I have been in three battles in four days."

Mrs. Warine Partridge entertained a large number of her friends at a tea yesterday afternoon at [illegible] Mrs. William Partridge and Miss Partridge, at her [illegible] Front street, which was beautifully decorated throughout with yellow chrysanthemums for the occasion.
